

Four

Correl Roush

June 4, 2015

*When I met you, my life changed. I was nervous at first, but you were patient.
I was shy, but you made me com- fortable. From our first chat, to our first date, and ever since, you've made every day of my life brighter. I cherish every moment we spend together, no matter how small. I like to steal looks at you because every time I see your face, I feel warm and wonderful. Whenever you smile at me, I feel the most incredible joy. I still vividly remember our wedding day, and my first glimpse of you as you walked toward me. You were so beautiful, and you were walking towards me. I've never felt such intense love ever before, and with you I get to experience it stronger with each passing day. There is nothing in my life I don't want to share with you and experience together. I know I don't let my emotions show often, and tend to be very reserved, but I feel things strongly, and I vow to open myself up more to you so you might feel as connected with me as I do to you. We've been married for four years today. I knew it before then, and I know it still today: You are, have been, and will always be, the woman I want to spend the rest of my life with. I love you, Jennifer, more than anything, and more every day.*

